Kongji & Patji

콩쥐팥쥐 vs Cinderella

Kongji

Patji

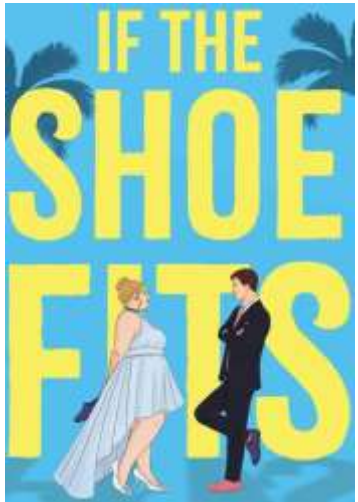

Kongji's mother died when Kongji was young. She grew up with her father. He remarried again. Her father died eventually. Her stepmother and stepsister, Patzzi treated Kongji very unfairly. Kongji was basically treated like a slave until some magical animals and an angel help change her fortunes

After a time, the town leader announced that he was looking for a wife. A dance would be given in his honour and every maiden was to attend. Kongji and Patzzi were invited. The stepmother was hopeful that Patzzi would be the lucky one, but afraid that Kongji would spoil her own daughter's chance.

Before they left, the stepmother gave Kongji a huge sack of rice to the hull, which she had to accomplish before they returned from the dance. Kongji asked for help from the heavens. A fairy came down from heaven and dressed Kongji in a beautiful gown and a delicate pair of colourful shoes. Kongji hurried towards the dance.

Everyone admired her because of her beauty. The town leader went to her to ask her name. But when Kongji saw her stepmother and stepsister among the guests, she fled with terror.

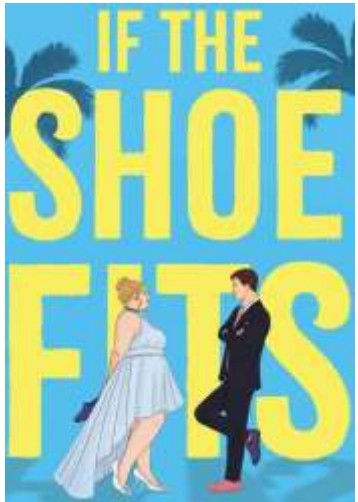

As Kongji crossed a bridge, she tripped. One of her shoes fell into the stream. The town leader found the shoe and vowed to marry the woman it belonged to...
